1
During this month of love, remember Who loves you the most! Jesus gave His life for you. Now THAT is TRUE LOVE!
John 15:13

2
Does your life give back love to the Lord as you respond to the love He has given to you? Spend time in worship and prayer today.
Psalms 29:1,2

3
Do you know about God or do you deeply love Him? You will know if your heart loves Him by the way you live your life. It will flow from within out to others!
John 13:35

Week 1: Loving God

5
Boys, boys, boys...the one topic on that eventually crosses the mind of most every girl in the world. So now what? Think about boys like they are brothers in the Lord.
Rom. 12:10

6
To flirt or not to flirt!? Here is the answer. Don't flirt. The more you give away the less you have to give on your marriage day for your Bae! Save yourself.
2 Timothy 2:22

7
Having multiple boyfriends only leads to drama, hurt, temptations, and wasted time. Wait for the right one at the right time.
Genesis 29:20

8
As you prepare for marriage, treat your brothers and dad with respect. It is a healthy way to already show honor the boys and men in your life.
Ephesians 5:33

9
Do you know one of the BEST gifts you can give your future mate is to remain pure for him? Start fresh today with a life of pure thoughts and actions.
Psalms 51:10

10
Don't worry about marrying the wrong person. Stay as close to God as your heart can and He will give you wisdom, discernment, and peace when the times comes!
James 1:5

Week 2: Loving the Boys

12
Think about a friend that you disagree with and wish you could just walk away. Just because there is adversity it may not mean that you have to lose a valuable friendship.
Proverbs 17:17

13
When is the last time you encouraged your friends? Send a text, write a note, or make a call to someone that God bring to mind that may need a boost today.
1 Thessalonians 5:11

14
Do you want to be a good friend? When you are around a group of people or with other girls, keep in mind all your friends around you so they feel included.
Philippians 2:3

15
Big moments are perfect times to love your friends. Birthdays, graduations, loss in the family, or an achievement of some kind are moments you can be there for them.
Romans 12:15

16
Sometimes loving your friends means you love them enough to confront ungodly choice patterns in their life. Go in love, with a gentle spirit and express your concern.
Galatians 6:1

17
It is better to have a couple close, meaningful friendships than a dozen surface friends. Choose who you want to be closest to and make time for them.
Proverbs 12:26

Week 3: Loving Your Friends

19
Is there someone around you that is highly annoying? Show them love anyway. How? Look for something about them that you respect or like and focus on that.
Ephesians 4:2

20
Is there someone who has hurt you? Show them love anyway. It doesn't mean that what they did was right, but God gave forgiveness to you so you can forgive others.
Ephesians 4:32

21
Is there someone who doesn't dress as nice as you or look as clean as you? Love them anyway. Pride can keep you from having a meaningful relationship that you really needed.
1 Samuel 16:7

22
Is there someone that is a different race than you? Show them love. Everyone was born into their race without choice so don't let that stop you from making friends.
Romans 12:9,10

23
Is there an elderly family member that takes your time and energy for you to visit? Love them anyway. One day you will be elderly and will reap what you sow.
Matthew 7:12

24
Is there someone that has the opposite personality of you? Love them anyway. Not everyone is supposed to be the same. Enjoy others and who they are that you are not.
Romans 12:4,5

Week 4: Loving the Unlovely

26
The family may be the hardest place to show love because you are with them more. These are the people that need your love the most. Stay close. Be in unity.
Psalms 133:1

27
When you have been in a family with abuse, addictions, divorce, or instability there can be a tremendous loss. Look to Godly counsel to get the healing you need so you can love your family again!
Proverbs 19:20

28
Find out ways to surprise your family! Leave notes, do an extra chore, show a new level of respect at the table, give a gift, offer a shoulder massage, or help them with a task.
Hebrews 13:16

Week 5: Loving My Family
